Week after next at English's will be unusual in number and quality of entertainments. On Monday and Tuesday evenings a farce by William Collier, entitled, "Would You for Five Millions?" will be presented by a company headed by George Parsons. Mr. Collier would have used this play himself this year had not his engagement by Weber & Fields intervened. "The Princess Chic," with J. C. Miron, will have the stage on Wednesday. Mr. Miron was a | elry house. member of the original company in this comic opera. Last season he was in "The Chaperons." Miss Marguerita Sylva and Miss Maud Lillian Berri have been "stars" in "The Princess Chic" and now Mr. Miron is to be a male prima donna in it. The Bostonians will sing De Koven and Smith's "Robin Hood" on Thursday evening. They have made a new production of this fine American work. A musical comedy, based on Dickens's "Pickwick Papers," will be presented on Friday evening by DeWolf Hopper and his company. On Saturday, Stuart Robson will offer his new production of "A Comedy of Errors."

Two of the funny features of "The Storks," which will have two performances at English's to-day, seem to be tricks of the actors, instead of inventions of the librettist. William Rock personates Fizzlewitz, Royal Repository of Hard Luck Tales, and grunts the word "philosophy," last syllable first, again and again until it rings in an auditor's head. Rock has no lines besides this nonsense. George Romain has no lines at all. He is Glumphiss, personal attendant of the Bungloo of Baktardia He laughs once and smiles once in the course of the play. The latter occasion is at a picnic, when he laboriously plays tag with the wife of the court physician. Miss Ruth White will leave the company at the end of this week and Miss May De Sousa will take the part of Helen, the Bungloo's sister. Miss De Sousa is here rehearsing. She was a member of one of the vaudeville bills at the Grand last season.

XXX Miss Nance O'Neill's London season has ended disastrously and the claims against her manager, McKee Rankin, are about $20,000 more than his assets. Supernumeraries that were used in the tragedy of "Elizabeth, Queen of England" have been besieging the Adelphi Theater and clamoring for their wages. Rankin says the failure was caused by a clique of managers. Miss O'Neill is very little known in this country. She has acted mostly in Australia, with occasional visits to the Pacific and Western States. She went to London by way of South Africa. She is now considering an offer to play a month at the Palace Music Hall.

A pretty home wedding last night took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Solomon on East Ohio street. The bride was their daughter Rose and the bridegroom was Mr. Joseph Traxler, of New York. The ceremony was pronounced at 8 o'clock, Rabbi Feuerlicht, of Lafayette. officiating. Attending the bride was the matron of honor, Mrs. Louis J. Levy, and Mr. Samuel Baum was the best man. An orchestra played the wedding music and the bridal party entered to the wedding march by Mendelssohn, the bride entering the ceremony room on the arm of her father. The music changed to "Oh, Thou Sublime, Sweet Evening Star" during the ceremony, after which the wedding bell of pink and white roses, beneath which the bridal couple stood, fell in a shower on their heads. Little Virginia May Levy. gowned in a low-neck frock of embroidered French lawn, pulled the ribbon with which the bell was fastened. The bride wore a gown of white mousseline de soie, made over satin, embellished with a bertha of duchesse lace. Her veil was fastened with orange blossoms and she carried an arm bouquet of Bride roses. Mrs. Levy's gown was of white mull, fashioned with lace insertions, with a sash of pink moire silk. She carried a shower of pink roses. The several rooms were decorated with palms and pink and white flowers. The mantels were banked with green foliage and the chandeliers and doorways were hung with vines. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served. SKIRT MODEL IN SHOW WINDOW.

Mile. Andressne Exhibits Petticoats to

Down-Town Shoppers. The most conspicuous young woman down town this week is Miss O. K. Petticoats, who occupies the west show window of the New York store. In private life Miss Petticoats is Mademoiselle Patrisse Andressne, who recently changed from the profession of vaudeville actress to that of demonstrator of the Original Kalamazoo Petticoat. Mile. Andressne may be seen all this week at the New York store, and she will appear at intervals during each morning and afternoon. The show window is arranged as a woman's dressing room, and the model appears in the numerous petticoats for young and old, slim and stout. A sturdy voice on the street announces the changes and tells the prices of the skirts.

Mile. Andressne is a very busy little woman. After displaying all her skirts she presents a card of invitation to the crowd to step inside and examine her line of goods. And, although it is not required of her, she goes to the sales counter and helps in selling the goods. The exhibition is very successful in drawing crowds. Some are prospective buyers, and some of them would have no use for skirts if they did. It is the uniqueness of the idea which attracts men, women and children. Mlle. Andressne and Messrs. Van Brook and Fleming, who are accompanying her, have been on the road for some time. Mile, Andressne is the only living skirt model on tour, and the idea is original with the company she rep-

HE WILL RECRUIT FOR THE UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS.

He Served with Major Waller in the Philippines and Was Recommended for Promotion.

Capt. H. I. Bearss, of the United States marine corps, recently returned from service in the Philippines, arrived in Indianapolis yesterday on recruiting service. Captain Bearss's home is at Peru. He is the guest of his friend, Samuel H., Pattison, Democratic candidate for county auditor. The captain will open a recruiting station on North Illinois street and will seek young men for service in the marine corps. They must be able-bodied and between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-five.

Captain Bearss was with Major Waller

plenty of fighting. He was recommended by Major Waller for a medal of honor or to be brevetted major. Waller's attention was attracted to the young man during the fight of Sohoton, in the Island of Samar. after a Filipino guide, who was leading them, had deserted. Bearss was a witness in the Waller court-martial, in which the major was charged with murdering eleven Filipinos and in which case Waller was honorably acquitted. "People in the States have been inclined to criticise Major Waller too severely, said Captain Bearss last night. "He does not deserve this criticism, as his record will show. ALLEN COUNTY'S NEW STRUCTURE

OPEN FOR THE PUBLIC BUSINESS.

Exercises Marred by the Heavy Rain of the Morning-Addresses by R. S.

Robertson and Bourke Cockran.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. FORT WAYNE, Ind., Sept. 23 .- The dedication of the Allen county courthouse was witnessed by many thousands fewer people than were expected. Rain began to fall before daybreak and fell in torrents nearly all the morning. The stand erected on the southeast corner of the square, against the building, had been draped with bunting but the fabric was soaked and the colors ran badly. It was decided at 11 o'clock that it would be necessary to hold the ceremonies inside of the courthouse and carpenters were put hastily to work to prepare a stand on the second floor, in the rotunda, but at 1 o'clock the sun came out feebly and the plan was changed back to the original. The threat of rain, however, had kept the outof-town crowds away, so that when President Orff, of the County Commissioners, called the people assembled to order at 2 o'clock there were hundreds within sound of his voice instead of thousands. Bishop Alerding delivered the invocation. and on behalf of the commissioners County Attorney James Barrett delivered the edifice to the people. Charles McCulloch, son of the late Hugh McCulloch, accepted the edifice on behalf of the people. Col. R. S. inburg, T. W. Northcott; Elizabethtown, the county, detailing its growth from the George Church; Flatrock, J. T. Scull, jr.; log cabin which was Allen county's first Van Cleve; Hartsville, E. J. He apostrophized the courts as the source of equity between the warring forces of society. Great applause greeted the conclusion of his address. It began sprinkling while he was talking. but he did not hasten to a conclus Chairman Samuel M. Foster then read the message from Secretary Cortelyou telling of the President's illness and of his inability to come to Fort Wayne to-night.
